MY FUTURE JOB

Daniel Jonáš Suchý

Every time someone asks me: "What job will you do?". I say: "Well I'd like to be an actor.". Everyone says something different: "Wow, what a cool job!". But there is always a counterpart. "Please don't be an actor! You won't end well!". I know many actors haven't ended well, but some have.

Why an actor? There are so many other jobs, but being an actor is just something else. First, you work with people. Working with good people is always great, you talk to them and you get to know them. Second, I think it's not that hard like people say. Yes, you have learn and remember the screenplay, but unlike poems, you can improvise. Third, the fun. When you forget your line, then you don't panic, but everyone around you laugh.

But we can't forget the counterpart. For me, the biggest problem would be big attention. Journalists following you everywhere, taking pictures of you, that's not easy. And then, the money. I partly decided to be an actor because of the money, but money can't give you anything. Many actors got consumed by it, and became arrogant. And I don't blame them, it can happen to anyone. Or drugs, alcohol. Yes, it can solve the problem you have, but causes a thousand more.

But who knows what's going to happen. Maybe I won't pass graduation or something else happens, but if it's how God wants it, then be it.
